Some Political Pointers.

Regarding the Democratic nominee for Secretary of State, the Caruthersville Democrat says: "John L. Sullivan is some campaigner. He went and saw the voters personally and won them over by his engaging personality and evident sincerity. Sullivan will win in a walk this fall and will make an efficient Secretary."

Wallace Crossley, Democratic nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, has impressed the people of the state by his clean-cut ability and force. Then, too, he is a fine campaigner.

John Gordon, who received more votes in the primary than his two competitors combined, will turn around and walk right back into the State Auditor's office in November.

George Middlecamp, nominee for State Treasurer, hasn't much more opposition than he had in the primary. And that was nothing. He is a wheel-horse for work, a democrat of the highest character, and he will breeze in.

Frank McAllister, roly-poly nominee for Attorney General, in whom popularity and efficiency meet, can be most serious when occasion requires. Just now it is the serious business of showing how far he can distance his opponent in the race.

That the Federal Rural Credits law will be fairly administered is assured by President Wilson who has appointed two Democrats and two Republicans to the new Federal Farm Loan Board.

The ex-justice needs some professional cheerers on his campaign tour. His speeches arouse about as much enthusiasm as the loeman with the last summer's bill.

Missouri state banks and trust companies alone, leaving out national institutions, show an increase of $41,600,000 in deposits this year over last year. This is the answer to republican calamity howlers.

"Deeds, not words," is what Mr. Hughes says he wants. But he is spouting words while President Wilson is grinding through a hot summer in Washington attending to the nation's business.

Colonel Frederick D. Gardner, Democratic nominee for Governor, is a "go-getter," the Bates County Democrat remarks. Correct. He will "getter" all right.

The Hughes idea is that republicans must hold office forever.

Now is the time for democratic "slackers" to get in the party trenches.

"I'm agin what Wilson's far, and fur what Wilson's agin," is the Hughes policy in homely phrase.

"Would you have urged upon congress an embargo upon the shipment of munitions to the allies?" This question, addressed to Mr. Hughes by a group of noted writers, including George Creel, remains unanswered.

Let Well Enough Alone.

That the state of the country under the Wilson administration is such as to make the ancient adage "Let well enough alone" eminently applicable and timely is shown in the following report of William Hoster, staff correspondent of the International News Service, who is accompanying Hughes the Fault-Finder in his campaign over the western trail the pathfinders traveled a century ago.

From Denver, August 31st, he reports on the Hughes reception at a Colorado county fair:

"Evidence of the prosperity which practically the entire West is enjoying—one of the hardest nuts the candidate has to crack in this campaign—greeted him on every side at this gathering of farmers. There were not less than 2,000 automobiles lined up along the race track when the Hughes party entered the fair grounds. Thousands of well-fed, well-dressed women and children and prosperous looking grangers were present.

"The sheds scattered about the enclosure were stocked with fat prize hogs, sleek cattle and every variety of farm products. Overhead a monoplane evolved. It was a fair sample of the 'let well enough alone' audiences which have greeted Mr. Hughes throughout the tour."

Out For Wilson and Democratic Ticket.

(Jackson Cash-Book.)

Charles B. Noland, of near Fruit City, brought fifteen head of hogs to this city yesterday morning and sold them to J. W. Daugherty for $262.25. The fifteen head were a few days over five months old. When Charles figured it up and found that he could get $17.48 apiece for five-months-old hogs under a Democratic administration, he decided that times were good enough for the farmer and announced that he was going to vote for Woodrow Wilson and the rest of the Democratic ticket in November. Mr. Noland has voted the Republican ticket for twenty years, but like many other Republicans he thinks for himself and has been convinced that the Republican claim that a high protective tariff is necessary for good prices is getting too worn and threadbare. He recalled how in 1907 depositors from some of the banks throughout the country, and said that condition had never existed under a Democratic administration.

Another example of good times for the farmer is reported by Tim Broderick, farmer and stock-trader, who on Monday of this week sold five sucking-calves for $30 apiece. If anyone has any doubts about Tim knowing good times when they come, just ask him how he expects to vote.

Typhoid Fever Season is Here.

The season for typhoid fever is approaching. With the multiplication of flies this danger increases, and the beginning of autumn the typhoid fever is upon us.

According to Dr. M. P. Ravenel of the department of preventive medicine at the University of Missouri, care should be taken in selecting a place for a vacation. Due precautions in looking into the sanitary surroundings, especially the purity of the water supply and the proper disposal of sewage, should be exercised.

Typhoid fever can be practically eliminated by the use of anti-typhoid vaccine. This is given in three injections at intervals of ten days so that the process is completed on the twentieth day. The injections are not painful, and seldom give rise to any marked reaction. The protection is almost absolute. It lasts for two and one-half to three years.

In the United States Army, including the Philippine Scouts, the troops in Porto Rico, China, Alaska and other parts of the world, a total of 90,750 men, there were only four cases of typhoid fever and no deaths during an entire year. Such a thing as 90,000 men exposed in all sorts of ways and places of the world, passing an entire year without a single death from typhoid fever and only four cases, has never been heard of in the world before. Even this does not tell the entire story. Of these four cases, three were in recruits who had not been vaccinated. Only one vaccinated man out of the 90,000 contracted typhoid fever, and his vaccination had been two years previously.

Anti-typhoid vaccination is therefore advised as a preparation for the summer vacation. People over 45 years old do not require it, but persons under this age should take it. The laboratory of the department of preventive medicine or the University of Missouri furnishes the vaccine free of charge to all practicing physicians in the state on application.—Missouri School Journal.

Kidney disease often advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headache, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the kidney secretions are offensive, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once. "Thousands recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement below: J. H. Hall, Flat River, Mo., says: "I was down with my back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I could do no stooping or lifting work and I had nervous, dizzy headaches and specks flashed before my eyes. The action of my kidneys was irregular and annoyed me. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, strengthened my back and helped me in every way."

Maxwell

F.O.B. DETROIT

The world's record—twenty-two thousand and twenty-two miles without stopping the motor—is held by a Maxwell stock touring car.

NO other car at any price has ever approached this wonderful record of endurance.

In addition to this proven sturdiness, remember that the Maxwell averages between 25 and 30 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Moreover, the Maxwell is complete. It has electric starter and lights; demountable rims; one-man mohair top; speedometer; roomy, comfortable seats and an attractive appearance.

Are you particular about details? Do you demand evidence of value? If so, you will investigate the Maxwell, the features, record and reputation of which proclaim it the world's greatest motor car value.

Now is Time to Fight Hessian Fly.

On account of the dry weather but few adult Hessian flies have emerged from infested wheat stubble, says T. J. Talbert of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri. The pest may still be found in the old wheat stubble in the flaxseed stage, when it can be destroyed by plowing and harrowing.

If the plowing is done in September, special pains should be taken to work the ground into a compact and firm seed bed. This will prevent the fly from escaping and the wheat will make a much better growth during the fall and early winter.

"Don't fail to keep down the volunteer wheat which will soon start on the plowed ground," advises Mr. Talbert. "The destruction of volunteer wheat starves the fly. Remember that the food plants of the Hessian fly are wheat, rye and barley and that none of these crops should be sown until on or after the fly-free date, which is for the northern third of Missouri, October 1; for the central third, October 8; and for the southern third, October 16. These are the safe sowing dates and they should be observed in order to escape injury from the Hessian fly."

A united fight should be made against the fly, according to Mr. Talbert, because if one farmer sows his wheat early or fails to keep down volunteer wheat, he may let enough flies live over winter in his early wheat to come out in the spring and destroy his own crop and the wheat crops of his neighbors who may have sown their wheat on or after the fly-free date. In the spring the fly comes from early sown wheat and volunteer wheat.

Shoot the Buzzards.

"Shoot The Buzzards!"—they are liable to spread many contagious diseases among animals. The hog cholera season is here, and the buzzards help to spread this disease, so says State Veterinarian Dr. D. F. Luckey.

A few outbreaks of anthrax have occurred in northern Arkansas. This disease is usually prevalent further south and seldom becomes widespread as far north as it has this year. Anthrax is equally as bad as hog cholera. Buzzards are likely to carry anthrax from northern Arkansas into Missouri. Shoot the buzzards and burn them!

Most people think there is a law in Missouri against killing buzzards. There is no law to this effect, and has not been for at least many years. Buzzards are a menace to live stock production, and therefore should be killed and burned. "Shoot The Buzzards!"
